History of Lanzerac

Lanzerac's rich history, dates back to 1692 when Governor Simon van der Stel granted a considerable tract of land in the Jonkershoek Valley to Isaac Schrijver and three freed slaves. The farm received the first of its names, Schoongezicht, where Schrijver set about planting vineyards. Throughout the years the farm had many owners. The most notable is Mrs Elizabeth Katherina English who purchased Schoongezicht in 1914, for the handsome price of £18 000, and changed the name of the farm from Schoongezicht to Lanzerac.

Mrs English embarked on extensive renovations which included alterations to the outbuildings as well as to the homestead. It is also believed that Mrs English bottled the first Lanzerac wine from grapes grown on her land, where there were believed to have been 21 imported varieties growing. The present Lanzerac winemaking team honours her memory through the Mrs English Reserve Chardonnay.

After her death in 1929 the farm was purchased by Johannes Tribbelhorn who became a member of the Cape Quality Wine Growers' Association, and by 1936 had established what was then one of the most modern wine cellars in the Cape.

The former Stellenbosch Farmers' Winery (SFW) purchased the Lanzerac trademark in 1958, taking over the management of the vineyards the same year. The company used the grapes as well as those from other sources to make the World's first commercially produced Pinotage - a 1959 vintage. This visionary release in 1961 marked the birth of Pinotage as a unique variety from South Africa.

In 1959, the iconic Lanzerac Rosé, in the famous teardrop bottle was released. The Rose has become the longest-standing wine in the Lanzerac range, and is still produced in the teardrop bottle.

Dr Christo Wiese acquired Lanzerac in 1991. He set about extensively remodeling the hotel to bring it in line with international 5-star standards, as well as replanting the vineyards and establishing a modern cellar. Dr Wiese sold Lanzerac to a British consortium in 2012. Wynand Lategan, who has been overseeing the production of the winemaking since 2005, has remained on as Cellar Master. Their trust in him has allowed him to continue making the wines for which Lanzerac has become famous.

In July 2012, the Lanzerac was acquired by a British Consortium and is currently operating under this management.
